

EARLY SETTLEMENT RAIL STRIKE IS NOW EXPECTED

DR. THOMPSON'S TRIP RETOLD FOR KIWANIS CLUB AT LUNCHEON

Interesting Account of His Tour in Europe Was Given.

Dr. Willard Thompson gave a brief but highly interesting talk before the Dixon Kiwanis club at their regular weekly meeting yesterday in the parlors of St. Luke's church, telling of his trip through Europe this summer when he spent three months taking a special course in surgical instruction at Vienna, Austria. His description of the people of the several countries, their habits, conditions economical and political formed a message such as has not been heard by the club members in many months.

"We left the ship at Rotterdam," said the doctor in starting his remarks, which were altogether too short, "and then went to Vienna. The inspection to which we were subjected at the border was very rigid. The German inspectors did not overlook the most minute article. From members of our party, cigars were taken away and we were permitted to take about one carton of cigarettes into the country. The trains were in bad condition, both inside and out. The cars had not been painted and presented a decidedly dirty appearance. We followed the Rhine river down through Cologne and Coblenz and arrived at Vienna. There were thirty-three of us in our party and I can now understand the advantages in going to Europe to study medicine and surgery.

Government Paid Teachers

"The professors in the institution where we were full time men and were paid by the government. Students pay $20 per hour to listen to their lectures. In this way you can understand why it takes so long to take a course. Ten students are required to form a class to attend these lectures and we were fortunate in having more than three classes already formed and ready for instruction upon arrival. Our study started at once. The professors are paid by the government and do very little practice, except consultation work or caring for the royalty. The hospital in which we received instruction was a 6000 bed institution and with 5000 in attendance. There was an abundance of material for the students to work with.

"Vienna is noted for its natural beauty, art, music and medical study. It is indeed a very interesting place with highly cultured people on all sides. We attended grand opera here and paid 25 cents for the best seats in the house. Food, however is scarce in Austria and there were days during our stay that it was almost impossible to secure potatoes enough to feed us at our hotel. People are entirely destitute in many places and in some localities they are still fighting the republicans. Many of the higher class of people still express their love and admiration for the former Kaiser and Emperor Franz Joseph.

Queer Business Methods

"They have queer business methods in Vienna in their business world. The places of business close at 11 o'clock each morning and open again at 2 o'clock, everybody going home for dinner and a rest. Many of the stores close for a certain length of time each day to change prices on their wares, this being necessary because of the ever changing money market.

"They have plenty of good beer and delicious wines to drink. There is an American bar in Vienna, but they do not sell beer, dealing only in liquors of the more expensive kinds, while you can go into one of the native places and be served the best of beer and wines. The business people gather on Saturday nights with their classes and sing and have an enjoyable time. The streets are lined with beggars who look to the tourists to give them their small change.

"I had an experience in Vienna which I shall never forget. Dr. McDermott of St. Joseph, Mich., and myself were out on a sight-seeing trip and walked into a shop to look at some native bracelets. The shopkeeper could not understand us nor could we understand him. Finally Dr. McDermott nudged me and said that the shop keeper was trying to fleece us and walked out. He had walked down the street and asked a policeman the direction to the market place. He had informed us and we had just started on our way when a man came running to the officer and demanded that he arrest us, charging that we had stolen a bracelet. We were locked up and held almost all night, incommunicado. When Dr. McDermott borrowed a knife from me to sharpen his pencil, the officers rushed in and took it away from me as I took it from my pocket. They thought that I was about to commit suicide. We finally gained our freedom when an interpreter was found and the merchant could not prove his charge. It was very embarrassing the officers being unable to understand us and we unable to understand their language.

DO YOU KNOW?

(By Chamber of Commerce.)

DIXON is particularly fortunate in its water supply. The quantity is ample for a city of over twice the size of Dixon in the state and is second to none in the quality as shown by analysis made by the Illinois Water Survey and by chemists at Urbana and at Cornell College at Mt. Vernon, Iowa. An analysis of this water made at the University of Illinois recently, shows it to be of first-class, with no impurities, and free of all injurious substances, also it is about the average hardness for ground waters for this state. If anything it is of somewhat of better quality than is usually found in deep wells. The hardness is all carbonate or temporary and would, therefore, not be expected to form hard adherent scale in boilers. Test of Dixon city water is as follows:

constituents in 100,000 parts:
Total solid residue	32.55
Silica (fine sand)	9.78
Iron and alumina	.042
Calcium sulphate	1.76
Calcium carbonate	21.30
Magnesium carbonate	8.0
Free ammonia	0.0 126
Albuminoid ammonia	.002
Nitrates	trace
Nitrites	0.0
Phosphates	0.00
Carbon dioxide	4.5
Common salt	2.35

There are four 8-inch wells of an average depth of 1,700 feet, with a flowing capacity of over 2874 gallons per minute or over four million gallons per day. There are 26 miles of four 4-inch to 16-inch cast iron mains with ten hydrants to each mile, affording splendid protection from fire. Pumping facilities are fully equal to any demand probable. The net cost of service, as fixed by the Illinois Utilities Commission is:

First 1,000 cu. ft. 26 1/2¢ per 100 cu. ft.
Next 10,000 cu. ft. 18 1/2¢ per 100 cu. ft.
All over 11,000 cu. ft. 11¢ per 100 cu. ft.

AMERICAN AID TO EUROPE IS GIVEN FOOTING

Comptroller Defends U. S.; Says Help is Plentiful.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 13.—Charges that the United States had failed to do its share in aiding the rehabilitation of the world were answered today by Comptroller of the Currency Crissinger in an address here before the Indiana Bankers' Association with the statement that in the past eight years this country has sent abroad nearly $2,000,000,000.

"I feel," he said, "that the present is not inappropriate time to refer to this truly gigantic participation by our country in sustaining and stabilizing the balance of the world." Mr. Crissinger summarized American contributions to the financing of the outside world since August 14, 1914, as follows:

American securities re-purchased from abroad $3,000,000,000; American government loans, $10,000,000,000; interest on government loans $2,000,000,000; commercial credits extended abroad $3,000,000,000; dollar securities bought from foreign countries, $3,631,000,000; foreign money securities sold in this country, $520,000,000 and foreign currencies bought by America, $500,000,000.

Ireland's Chances in League Are Good

Geneva, Sept. 13.—(By the Associated Press.)—Ireland's chances for admission to the League of Nations now appear to be good. Her application is not on the agenda of the assembly but the steering committee can put it there if it sees fit. Michael Mac White, the Irish Free State delegate to the League, returned to Dublin last night to report on the situation here and learn conditions in Ireland. All that is necessary for the admission of Ireland now, it is said, is that she give some sure indication that she is able to maintain order and is disposed to ratify the Irish constitution.

Supporters of Charles B. Ward and Former Governor G. W. P. Hunt of Arizona both were claiming victory in the race for democratic nomination for governor of Arizona, with meager returns indicating a close race. Gov. Campbell is unopposed to the republican nomination and Senator Ashurst, democrat, also had no opposition for re-nomination.

In the Massachusetts gubernatorial contest, Governor Cox had an easy victory for the republican nomination. William A. Gaston, Boston banker, was well in the lead for the democratic senatorial nomination in late returns.

Governor Groesbeck of Michigan easily defeated two opponents for re-nomination while James Balch had a small lead over Alva M. Cummins on early returns for the democratic nomination.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Wendell was shot by Deputy Sheriff F. Heikes, a son of the sheriff.

"I have put my son in jail until the inquest can be held," the sheriff said today. Young Wendell died in a hospital here early today. Whiteside County Asks Aid

A communication was read at this morning's session from County Clerk Chapin of Whiteside county in which the Board of Supervisors of that county through its road and bridge committee ask for assistance in the repair of the Holland bridge, south of Rock Falls. The communication sets forth that the floor of this bridge is in a bad state of repair and that the road and bridge committee of Whiteside county has recommended a creosoted plank flooring with an asphalt blanket covering, as well as the repainting of the structure of the road to stand its share of the repair bill.

Chairman Joseph Bauer of the road and bridge committee addressed the board stating that this particular bridge had been the subject of previous controversy and that Lee county, according to the state road and bridge law, was not obliged to stand the proportion.

"BIG TIM" PLANS TO CARRY CASE TO WASHINGTON

Chicago Labor Leader Fights Sentence to Prison.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Sept. 13.—"Big Tim" Murphy, Chicago's picturesque labor leader, whose six-year sentence for the $285,000 Dearborn station mail robbery in April, 1921, was affirmed yesterday by the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, prepared today to carry his fight to the United States Supreme Court.

At the same time the police admitted that Vincenzo Cosmano under sentence with Murphy has fled to Italy.

Cosmano faced four years in Leavenworth for his part of the mail robbery.

Murphy, a former member of the Illinois legislature and for years a notorious figure in labor wars and sensational murder cases, faced the first prison sentence imposed upon him in all his trials.

In addition to their sentences, fines of $30,000 against Murphy and $20,000 against Cosmano were imposed by former Federal Judge Landis.

SLAYER OF HIS GIRLS TRIED TO CUT OWN THROAT

Told How He Killed Daughters Then Tried Suicide.

By Associated Press Leased Wire

Kansas City, Sept. 13.—Tony Dinello, confessed slayer of his two daughters, was in a local hospital recovering from a cut in his throat, he having attempted to take his own life last night.

Dinello had been taken to his home and had just demonstrated to police and detectives how he killed his two daughters. He told the officers how he had thrown the bodies from a nearby bridge. He asked to be permitted to enter his box car house so that he might hunt for some money there.

Climbing upon a chair so that he might see on top of a shelf, Dinello snatched a rusty razor blade and cut his throat. He was rushed to a hospital where he is being kept under guard. Doctors said he will probably live.

Killed With Hammer

He told police of Kansas City Kan., how his two daughters had displeased him by staying out late at night. Some money he had in the house was missing, he said, and when the rest of the family was gone he took the two girls to the chicken shed to question them about it. He became angry, he said, at their replies to his questions, and finally hit the younger daughter on the head with the hammer. The other daughter attempted to run away, but he caught her and killed her with the same weapon. After dark he returned to the chicken shed and tied the girls' bodies in gunny sacks, after which he carried them to the bridge and dropped them into the Kaw river.

The bodies were found by fishermen after they had floated down stream into the Missouri river.

No charges have been placed against Dinello.

Several high administration officials expressed the belief that action was a matter of hours.

It was learned most officials have been advised that proposals for a separate agreement between 50 and 55 strike again today was predicted as a possibility late in the afternoon as the general policy committee of the federated shop crafts went into session at 10:30 o'clock. It was virtually the same prediction made yesterday morning.

"We hope to reach a decision today," B. M. Jewell, head of the railway employees department of the American Federation of Labor said. "I can predict nothing further than that."

It is believed that she was preparing breakfast and started to go to the cellar, when she tripped and fell down the stairs, striking her head against one of the steps and producing the fracture. At noon today, very little hope was entertained for her recovery and she was reported to be growing weaker, having not regained consciousness.

M. Jewell, head of the railway employees department of the American Federation of Labor announced when the committee adjourned a long session at 1:45 o'clock this afternoon for lunch. He promised a full statement by 6 o'clock this evening.

Mr. Jewell declined to say whether the questions already decided had to do with settlement of the strike. He said it was only a decision in part and that the remainder of the proposals before the committee would be discussed at the afternoon session.

"The only thing we can say at this time," Mr. Jewell said, "is that we have prepared an outline of a statement covering the action taken and will release a statement covering this at 6 o'clock this evening."

Washington, Sept. 13.—(By the Associated Press.)—Confidence was expressed today by those in close touch with the rail strike situation that action would be taken soon at the Chicago meeting of strike leaders which would go far toward ending the walk-out of shopmen which became effective July 1.

Several high administration officials expressed the belief that action was a matter of hours.

It was learned most officials have been advised that proposals for a separate agreement between 50 and 55 strike again today was predicted as a possibility late in the afternoon as the general policy committee of the federated shop crafts went into session at 10:30 o'clock. THE LESSON HONEST JOHN THOMPSON TAUGHT—

One honest John Thompson, a hedger and ditcher. Although he was poor, didn't want to be richer; For all such vain wishes in him were prevented. By a fortunate habit of being contented.

Though cold was the weather or dear was the food, John never was found in a murmuring mood. For this he was constantly heard to declare, What he could not prevent he would cheerfully bear.

"For why should I grumble and murmur?" he said.

"If I cannot get meat I can surely get bread; And while fretting may make my calamities deeper, It never can cause bread and cheese to be cheaper."

If John was afflicted with sickness and pain, He wished himself better, but did not complain. Nor he down and fret in despondence and sorrow, But said that he hoped to be better tomorrow.

If anyone wronged him or treated him ill— Why, John was good-natured and so-called still. For he said that avenging the injury done Would be making two rogues when there need be but one.

And thus, Honest John, though his station was humble, Passed through this sad world without even a grumble, And I wish that some folks who are greater and richer Would copy John Thompson, the hedger and ditcher.

MARRIAGE A LA MODE—

The marriage tie is binding indeed among the Shawnee Indians. When a woman loses her husband she is supposed to marry his brother or nearest of kin after a conventional period of widowhood.

If she dies first he is expected to marry her sister, or some member of her family.

The children take the name of the mother.

IF YOU ARE WELL BREED—

You never make comments about the food served in another's home except to praise it.

It is better to accept a little of all the food served, even though you do not care for it, or intend to eat it, rather than refuse entirely anything which has been prepared for your pleasure.

Morrow and Singers Draw Large Audience

(Contributed)

At the revival service at Grace United Evangelical church last evening, Evangelist Harry Morrow preached on three words—Come! Tarry! Go! They suggest a universal invitation, a universal command and a universal commission. All are invited to come to Christ. Those who come to Him for pardon need to tarry for equipment for service, and to such the commission is to go and teach all nations all that Christ has commanded. The attendance was good and the message was well received.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Schell, of Akron, O., trained and experienced gospel singers, will sing at the service this evening. These consecrated workers arrived in Dixon this noon and many should hear their messages in song. Rev. Morrow will preach this evening and every evening during the week except Saturday. He proposes to hold three great meetings on Sunday at 10:45 a. m., 2:30 p. m., and 7:30 p. m. The people are cordially invited to attend these splendid gospel meetings.

GAMES FOR BLOOD AT STERLING SATURDAY AND SUNDAY ASSURED

Prophetstown Aggregation, Loaded, Will Be Opponents.

The baseball park at Sterling will be the scene of two of the most bitterly fought battles staged on that diamond this season Saturday and Sunday when the Prophetstown and Sterling teams meet for the championship title of Whiteside county.

Prophetstown was defeated in a game early in the season by the Sterling team, but since that time has greatly strengthened their club. With the end of the minor league season, several stars of various clubs have been picked up by Prophetstown and in addition to these men, two of the best twirlers that could be obtained have been hired by a popular subscription of the fans. It is understood that Noyes and Big Jim Vaughn, both ex-big leaguers and now the property of Beloit in the Mid-west league are the two slabsmen Prophetstown have obtained to take the measure of Sterling.

Prophetstown will be followed by several hundred fans from Geneseo, Osceola and Atkinson. Games scheduled for next Sunday in these three towns have been cancelled in order that the players and fans can journey to Sterling.

Sterling's Pitchers.

Prendergast and Eaton, two of the best semi-pro hurlers in this section all season, will be on the mound for the home team and the fans of Sterling have utmost confidence in these two pitching aces. The Sterling infield, however, will be strengthened for the remainder of the season by the acquisition of First Baseman Otto Fahlman of the Danville Three-Eye League team and Buster Woodworth, third baseman of the Bloomington Three-Eye league club. Fahlman was the leading first sacker of the Three-Eye, ranking second in batting for the entire league this season with an average of .361. Woodworth is one of the fastest fielders of the Three Eye circuit and his batting average of .291 shows that he holds his own with the better hitters. The acquisition of these two men gives Sterling semi-pro team second to none in Northern Illinois and from date henceforth the baseball fans of this territory will have the opportunity of seeing some real tilts on the Sterling diamond.

Dixon and vicinity will no doubt be well represented at the two games next Saturday and Sunday.

SELLING AUTOS

How would you like to take a whirl in business for yourself selling autos? Like most other things, it looks better from the outside.

Thirty-one thousand auto dealers went out of business with a loss of $233,000,000 last year, according to Leroy W. Campbell, New York banker, addressing a convention of used-car dealers.

Most of these failures, says Campbell, were due to "lack of careful figuring when allowing for old cars, lack of courage in trading and lack of selling ability."

An interesting situation. Most of us imagine that commercial failures usually are caused by bad business. But here are thousands of failures due to too much business. The victims literally traded themselves out of existence.

A tremendous and fascinating business, the auto game. It now ranks fifth or sixth among all American industries.

In August the output of motorcars was about 245,000, against 180,735 cars in August last year. Rather a startling figure, showing how rapid has been the recuperation from hard times.

Germany, by the way, is exporting less than 1000 motorcars a month. We're doing nine times as well.

American output of passenger autos and trucks, so far in 1922, has been at the rate of 2,400,000 a year. In rough figures, that's as many autos as exist in all countries of the world combined outside the United States.

Less than 20 years ago the auto was such a novelty that everyone turned and stared when a "horseless carriage" rattled past. Even the wildest visionaries never dreamed that autos would ever be as numerous as they are now.

One of the greatest thrills of living in America is the element of surprise the rapid and constant change.

It is not at all improbable that, 20 years from now, people will be using as many airplanes as there are autos today.

DRESSING WOMEN

Paul Poiret, famous creator of styles, says Parisian fashions will be driven out of America by the new tariff with its 90 per cent duty on imported feminine garments.

Poiret predicts that prohibition of beautiful clothes is booked to follow prohibition of liquor.

This, of course, is Big Talk. A tariff might stop the importation of finished garments. But nothing can stop the spread and copying of styles. That is, nothing except common sense. And when it comes to dressing, the common sense of American women is on the job more than ever before.

They will think twice before surrendering comfort, despite Paris.

The tariff, fumes Poiret, "may even keep away the trailing skirts of the Italian Renaissance which are the approaching Paris fashion."

If the tariff can prevent a return of sidewalk-sweeping, germ-collecting skirts, it should be given a rising vote of thanks, especially by babies crawling about their mothers' feet.

A trailing skirt can carry more disease than an army of rats.

Nine months ago the mannikins employed by M. Poiret paraded in Parisian hoop-skirts, trying to resurrect grandma's styles.

You haven't seen any hoop-skirts lately, though, have you?

The best overlooked by Poiret was that the hoop-skirt is a physical impossibility in modern America. It couldn't be gotten through the door of the average apartment, let alone a street car, auto or theater seat.

The only possible way in which a hoop-skirt could be used now would be in a farm-field or for transporting a few cases of liquor under cover.

STINNES

Hugo Stinnes tackles the biggest job of his career. He negotiates to furnish 13 billion francs' worth of German materials for rebuilding war-devastated France.

In this you see common sense at last returning to Europe. Germany cannot pay the reparations bill in gold. She can pay in materials—frozen labor.

There is hope for Europe as gallery-playing diplomats are forced to the background and business men begin to take charge of reconstruction. Europe's greatest problem today, as before the war, is her professional politicians.

LIQUOR

The 40,000,000 gallons of "hard" liquor, now stored in 300 bonded warehouses all over the country, will be concentrated in 30 warehouses, announces Internal Revenue Commissioner Blair.

The fewer the warehouses, the harder for forgers, counterfeiters, burglars and murderers to get what's inside. For 30 warehouses, 30 machines or 20 Texas rangers should be sufficient guards. The thirsty will note that the bonded stock is less than a quart and a half for each American.

BRAINS

Spitzka, top-notch American brain specialist and insanity expert, is dead at the age of 46. One of his most interesting jobs was dissecting the brain of Anarchist Czolgosz, McKinley's murderer.

Spitzka undoubtedly learned a lot about the mechanics of thought—the brain-machine that eventually goes to dust. As to the nature of the intellectual force that operates the brain machine, he was as much in the dark as the rest of us. That force's importance is usually exaggerated. It controls not more than a half of human activities. Instinct and emotion govern the rest.

INFLATION

The market quotation posted in Great Falls, Mont., announces that farmers there can get 90 cents a bushel freight to Duluth. That's half as good as the pre-war prosperity days of "dollar wheat and money in the bank."

Our system of economics still is far out of balance.

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

"Step aside," said Mr. Rubadub. The four fairymen, Mr. Tingaling and Mr. Scribble-Scratch, Mr. Sprinkle-Blow and Mr. Rubadub, all stood looking at Nancy and Nick, whom Flap-Doodle had changed into white rabbits. "I don't know enough magic to change 'em back into children again," said Tingaling glumly. "And I don't know enough to change 'em, either," said Sprinkle-Blow soberly. "And I don't know enough, either," said Mr. Scribble-Scratch, looking ashamed of himself. Mr. Scribble-Scratch, being a fairy schoolmaster, was supposed to know everything. "Step aside," said Rubadub, coming forward grandly and rubbing his hands together. "I've learned two new charms and I've been waiting for a chance to use them." "Then, please hurry!" remarked Tingaling a bit sharply. "There is no time to be wasted." So Rubadub said at once: "Nick be nimble, Nick be quick, Nick, jump over this little stick!" One of the little white rabbits gave a big hop over a little twig that the fairymen held out and scarcely had his feet touched the ground again when Nick appeared in his true form, as well and smiling and happy as ever. Then Rubadub said another charm like this: "Little Nancy Etticote in a white petticoat, And a pink nose, Turn three times around and see how tall she grows." The other little rabbit turned around three times as Rubadub said and behold! There stood Nancy all dimples and brightness. "Well, we declare!" said all the fairies in astonishment. Common Sense Ways to Keep Well.

DRINK MORE MILK

BY DR. R. H. BISHOP.

Since milk is a typical natural food, it is very deficient in iron, so that anemia is almost sure to result from its over-use.

It is practically the only food which contains all the elementary principles in anything like the right proportions. It requires very little energy for digestion.

Milk is, however, not easily tolerated by some people, and in any case is very deficient in iron, so that anemia is almost sure to result from its over-use.

A good way to include more milk in your diet is through the use of cream soups and creamed vegetables.

Because of the healthy little vitamins in milk, other dishes also should be considered that contain this element. Many vegetables contain vitamins, such as spinach, carrots and turnips, and other green vegetables should be used in their respective seasons.

It is well to give children a quart of milk daily, while adults should drink at least a pint. It should be taken slowly and not in gulps and hurriedly.

Products of milk, such as cheese or buttermilk are healthful. Cheese, however, is difficult to digest. To promote its digestion it ought to be grated or eaten with some other easily digested food.

Cream contains most of the fats of the milk and is a somewhat heavier food. One pint of cream contains more caloric value than four quarts of milk.

The addition of milk of water, cream and sugar is often necessary to make it more digestible, especially for children.

C. W. Barron, leading Wall Street editor, says: "I wouldn't give Henry Ford $10 a week as a financial reporter, but I would agree to get him a job at any time at more than $1,000,000 a year as a factory manager."

For each man there is some one job for which he is better fitted than anyone else. People are forever being told to "work hard." More important is to find the work for which they are best fitted. Unless they find it they can never hope for spectacular success any more than square pegs will fit into round holes.

TODAY'S word in—MODICUM. It's pronounced—mod-i-kum, with accent on the first syllable. It means—a little; a small quantity; a limited amount or supply.

It comes from—Latin—"modicus," moderate; more indirectly from "modus," a measure.

It's used like this—"News that Lenin is again at the helm in Russia is received with a modicum of satisfaction in most quarters, not because he is considered, basically, any less a super-radical than the rest of the Bolsheviks, but because he is deemed more intelligent."

A THOUGHT FOR TODAY

Wherefore, if God so clothes the grass of the field, which today is, and tomorrow is cast into the oven, shall He not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith?—Matthew 6:30.

An inch more to right or left had sealed its fate, or an inch higher; and yet it had lived to flourish as much as if it had a thousand acres of untrodden space around it, and never knew the danger it incurred. It did not borrow trouble, nor invite an evil fate by apprehending it.—Henry D. Thoreau.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

When the brilliant member of the English Secret Service known as ANDRE DUCHEMIN attempted to throw the Bolsheviks off his trail by taking a walking tour in southern France, he encountered adventures even more hazardous than those he attempted to avoid. After a terrific battle with a Parisian Apache, Duchemin rescued MME. DE SEVENIE, her granddaughter.

LOUISE DE MONTALAIS, widow of MME. de Sevenie's grandson, who was killed in the World War.

GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IV

Enter Romance

WHEN she had graciously permitted Duchemin to assist her to a place in the carriage, Madame Sevenie turned immediately to comfort her granddaughter. It was easy to divine an attachment there, between d'Aubrac and Louise de MONTALAIS; Duchemin fancied (and, as it turned out, rightly) the two were betrothed.

But Madame de MONTALAIS was claiming his attention.

Momentarily a hand slender and firm and cool rested in his own. Then its owner was settling into place beside Madame de Sevenie, and Duchemin clambering up to his on the box.

The road proved quite rough and declivitous. Duchemin was grateful for the moonlight—until he remembered that without the moon there would have been no expedition that night to view the mock ruins of Montpellier by its unearthly light, and consequently no adventure to entangle him.

Upon this reflection he swore softly but most fervently into his becoming beard. He was well fed up with adventures, thank you, and could have done very well without this latest.

What now of the comfortable pseudonymity of Andre Duchemin? Posing in an inescapable glare of publicity, how long might he hope to escape recognition by some acquaintance, friend or enemy? Heaven knew he had enough of both sorts scattered widely over the face of Europe.

It seemed hard, indeed. At La Roque it was as Duchemin had foreseen. Whereas the motor car was waiting safe and sound enough, its chauffeur had vanished into thin air. Whereupon Duchemin asked whether the chauffeur had been a stout man, and being informed that it was so, considered the case complete. Madame de Sevenie, et de MONTALAIS, he suggested, might give up all hope of ever again seeing that particular chauffeur.

The landlord of the auberge, a surly sot, who had supplied the barouche with the man to act as driver and guide in one, took with ill grace the charge that his employee had been in league with the bandits. But this was true on the word of Madame de MONTALAIS; it was their guide, she said, whom Duchemin had driven over the cliff. And (as Duchemin had anticipated) her name alone proved enough to silence the landlord's virtuous protestations.

Seated beside Madame de MONTALAIS, Duchemin watched her operate the car with skilful hands on the road to Nant.

The sweep of night air in his face was sweet and smooth, and stroked his eyelids with touches as bland as caresses of a pretty woman's fingers.

It was good to be alive tonight.

alive and weary and not ill-content with self, in a motor car swinging swiftly and silently along a river road in the hills of southern France, with a woman lovely and mysterious at the wheel.

Duchemin was conscious of something like a shock of emotion, a sudden surging of some hunger that had long lain dormant in his being, unsuspected, how long he could not surmise, gaining strength in latency, waiting to be awakened and set free by one careless, sidelong look and smile of a strange woman.

"Eve," he whispered, unheard, "Eve de MONTALAIS."

CHAPTER V

Phinuit & Co.

IN the upshot, however, legal necessity had nothing to do with the length of time devoted to Monsieur Duchemin to kicking idle heels in the town of Nant; where the civil authorities proved considerable in a degree that gratified and surprised the confirmed Parisian.

"WHAT'S THE AWFUL IDEA, YOU BIG STIFF?"

The driver-guide of La Roque turned out to have been a thorough-paced scamp, well and ill-known to the gendarmes; the wound sustained by Monsieur d'Aubrac bore testimony to the gravity of the affair, amply excusing Duchemin's interference and its fatal sequel.

Late in the afternoon of his second day in Nant, Duchemin let his vision dwell upon the distant chateau almost as constantly as his thoughts.

He was to dine there that very evening. He had yet to hold one minute of private conversation with Eve de MONTALAIS, and yet . . .

Now he had seen Madame de MONTALAIS another time, and had found that she fitted to the sweetest detail of perfection his ideal of Woman.

On the previous afternoon, meeting the ladies of the chateau by arrangement in the bureau of the mayor, Duchemin had sat opposite and watched and listened to Eve de MONTALAIS for upward of two hours.

Posed with consummate elegance in her half-mourning, she had narrated quietly her version of last night's misadventure, an occasional tremor of humor lightening the moving modulations of her voice. A deep and vibrant voice, contralto in quality, hinting at hidden treasures of strength. A fair woman, slim but round, with brown eyes level and calm, a translucent skin of matchless texture, hair the hue of bronze, faced with intimations of gold . . .

Her age, she said, was twenty-nine; her birthplace, the City of New York; her parents, Edmund Anstruther, once of Bath, England, but at the time of her birth a naturalized citizen of the United States, and Eve Marie Anstruther, nee Legendre, of Paris. Both were dead. In June, 1914, she had married, in Paris, Victor Maurice de MONTALAIS, who had been killed in action at La Fere-Champenoise on the ninth of September following. Her home? The Chateau de MONTALAIS.

On the hand Duchemin saw a blue diamond of such superb water that this amateur of precious stones caught his breath for sheer wonder at its beauty and excellence and worth. Such jewels, he knew, were few and far to seek outside the collections of princes.

The mellow resonance of a two-toned automobile horn, disturbing Duchemin's meditations, recalled him to Nant in time to see a touring car of majestic proportions which was sweeping a fine curve round two sides of the public square. Instantly, as the wheels ceased to turn, a young man in the smartest livery imaginable, green garnished with gold, leaped smartly from the driver's seat, with military precision opened the door of the tonneau and, holding it, immobilized himself into the semblance of a waxwork image with the dispassionate eye, the firm mouth, and the closely razored, square jaws of the model chauffeur.

Rustics and townfolk were already gathered, when from the tonneau descended first a long and painfully emaciated gentleman, whose face was a cadaverous mask of settled melancholy and his chosen toilette for motoring (as might be seen through the open and flapping front of his ulster) a tightly tailored light gray cutaway coat and trousers, with a double-breasted white waistcoat, a black satin Ascot scarf transfixed by a single splendid pearl, and spotless white spats.

His hand, as gaunt as a skeleton's, assisted to alight a young woman whose brilliant blond beauty, viewed for the first time in evening shadows, was like a shaft of sunlight in a darkened room. A well-made creature, becomingly and modestly gowned for motoring, spirited yet dignified in carriage, she was like a vision of the Rue de la Paix.

Following her, a third passenger presented the well-nourished, indeed rotund, person of a Frenchman of thirty devoted to "le sport"; as witness his aggressively English tweeds and the single glass screwed into his right eye-socket.

Like shapes from some superbly costumed pageant of high life in the twentieth century this trio drifted, rather than merely walked like mortals, across the terrace and into the Cafe de l'Univers.

But there was more and better to come. There remained in the car a mere average man, undistinguished but by a lack of especial distinction, sober of habit, economical of gesture, dressed in a simple lounge suit such as anybody might wear, beneath a rough and ready-made motor coat.

"We dine here, Jules," he announced in English. Settling into place behind the wheel Jules saluted with fine finish and deference.

"Very good, Mr. Phinuit, sir," he said meekly, in the same tongue. To this he added, coolly, and in precisely the tone of respect that became his livery: "What's the awful idea, you big stiff?"

Mr. Phinuit betrayed not the slightest sense of anything untoward in this mode of address. "Why," he said pleasantly—"you misbegotten garage hound—why do you ask?"

In the same manner Jules replied: "Can't you see it's going to rain?"

"So it is," Mr. Phinuit commented amiably; indeed, not without a certain hint of satisfaction. "Blessed if you don't see everything!"

"How do you get that way? Do you want us all to get soaked to our skins?"

"My dear Jules!" Mr. Phinuit returned with a winning smile—"I don't give a tuppenny damn if we do."

At that moment arrived the caleche which Duchemin had commanded to drive him to the chateau; and with a ride of two miles before him and rain imminent, he had no more time to waste.

BASE HITS

CHICAGO, Sept. 13.—(By the Associated Press)—The New York Yankees, leaders in the American League, opened their western invasion at Chicago today and after the White Sox series that is expected to determine the 1922 pennant winner.

The Browns without the services of Sisler, who may be out of the game the rest of the season as the result of a sprained shoulder muscle, defeated the Tigers yesterday 8-6, and thus moved to within one game of the Yankees who were idle. The Cleveland Americans, battling to displace Chicago for a first division berth, defeated the White Sox yesterday 8-2 and are now only seven points behind the Chicago club.

No games were played in the National League rain preventing the two contests which were scheduled and only two games were played in the American League.

Manager "Kid" Gleason of the White Sox tried out three rookie pitchers Cecil Duff, Emitt Bowles and Homer Blankenship, against Cleveland, but they appeared to be to the Indians' liking. Speaker's tribe clouted the newcomers for seven of the hits, every Indian getting one or more hits.

White Sox fans were credited with a triple killing at the expense of the Cleveland Indians, the play being executed, Collins to Johnson to Sheely to Varyan.

The White Sox' catching staff was given another blow when "Yan" Varyan, second string catcher, had his finger split by a foul tip off Wood's bat. Ray Schalk, star receiver of the Chicago team, has been out of the game for several days because of a similar injury.

Haney and Foster, third sackers of Detroit and St. Louis, respectively, had perfect averages, the former getting four hits in as many times at bat and the latter gathering three blows in three times at bat.

"I knew him when he was a boy"

What one is there of us that has not felt the glow of satisfaction over the outstanding success of a life-long friend? Often a surprise—seemingly "all of a sudden." Yet neither surprising nor sudden, when you stop to think back over each step of his progress.

THE United States Rubber Company—makers of U. S. Royal Cords—were first to conceive, make and announce the balanced tire. A tire in which there is such complete unity of action in tread and carcass that neither will give way before the other.

First to conceive, make and announce a complete line of tires—a tire for every need of price and use under one standard of quality.

First to tell the public about the good and bad in tire-retailing. (You remember the phrase "Go to a legitimate dealer and get a legitimate tire.")

First also to arouse industrial and trade minds to the need of a new kind of tire competition. (Competition for better and better values. Greater and greater public confidence.)

THESE high spots along the U. S. road to leadership indicate the intent—the will to win by the quality route in a price market.

Now that so many car-owners have given their verdict for quality tires in general, and U. S. Tires in particular—a number of dealers and car-owners whose vision has been clouded by "discounts," "sales" and what not, are beginning to remember that they "knew him when he was a boy."

Carroll and spent the day. The guests made their departure for home on Tuesday.

The Harmon Social Circle met on Thursday afternoon with Mrs. I. H. Perkins. This was the regular time for the election of officers but owing to the fact the president, Mrs. Ross was out of town the election was postponed until October. A goodly number were in attendance and sewing for sick members occupied the afternoon. The hostess served dainty and tempting refreshments.

SCENE IN THE NIGHTCAP

Why Take a Chance? When the Chicago Public and Critics Say That—

"The Nightcap" is more "Batty" than "The Bat." The Optimist, Evening American

Exceptionally diverting by a steady flow of humor. The Playhouse is probably "set for the balance of the season." O. L. Hall, Journal

"The Nightcap" is far superior to "The Bat" for its comedy is never of the vaudeville variety.

If "The Bat" could keep Chicago audiences thrilled and amused for fifty-three consecutive weeks how long will "The Nightcap" remain? Charles Collins in The Post

The cast is perfectly delightful—the women beauties who are clever, the men admirable comedians. Amy Leslie, The News

"The Bat" is gone; long live "The Nightcap." Sheppard Butler, Tribune

"The Nightcap" direct from its long run in Chicago, where it attained great success for eight months at the Playhouse. This play will be shown here exactly as it was seen in Chicago and New York—a first class company of players and the same production. "The Nightcap" has been endorsed by the press and public as a clean, wholesome dramatic triumph, full of thrills, romance, comedy and mystery. It is a play you will enjoy from start to end, as the tense dramatic climax which happens every few moments, makes you cling to your chair and wonder what comes next.

A drama of man's undying faith in the woman he loves. A superb screen entertainment, rich in sentiment and a powerful story faultlessly told. A cast of power and distinction. Peter B. Kyne wrote it, R. A. Walsh produced it and he certainly has made some mighty pictures. "Kindred of the Dust" is the type of picture which the patrons of this theatre prefer and we are sure you will enjoy every foot of it.
